

Coup Overthrows Panama's President

PANAMA (AP) — The leader of a bloodless military coup against the 11-day-old government of President Arnaldo Arias said today national guard forces were in complete control of the country.

Arias, 67, who has been deposed from the presidency twice before by the guard in the past three decades, took refuge in the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone with most of his Cabinet ministers after the takeover began Friday night.

How long he planned to remain there was not known but sources close to him indicated he might return to Panama City and try to rally popular support to face the guard, the country's only military force.

Lt. Col. Omar Torrijos identified himself and Maj. Boris

Martinez, commander of the Chiriqui Province military zone, as leaders of the coup. He said they were supported by "all the young officers." He charged that Arias planned to "enthronize a dictatorship" and convert the guard into a "political instrument of persecution."

In a shake-up ordered by Arias, Torrijos earlier had been relieved as executive secretary of the guard and ordered abroad. Other anti-Arias officers were given unimportant posts.

Torrijos said Arias supporters were being rounded up.

Clad in fatigues with his sleeves rolled up, Torrijos said the next step was to decide whether to set up a military junta or to "constitutionalize" the coup by calling in First Vice President Raul Arango to take the presidency. Arango could not be located but was reported with Arias.

Aside from small knots of people at doorways, the city appeared calm. There was some panic along A Avenue, the street on which the guard's two-story headquarters is located, when the coup got underway at 9 p.m. Friday night.

Roving guard patrols broke up any groups they found. There was an unconfirmed report that two men were wounded on Central Avenue, the city's main thoroughfare.

A clandestine radio station was reported by several listeners to be on the air, calling on the people to rally to Arias' support. Listeners reported the station changed frequency constantly.

HHH Still Out Of Campaign With Illness

Demo Candidate Battles Flu Bug In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, admittedly an underdog and rebuffed by Richard M. Nixon in his efforts to gain televised debates, is battling a flu bug that forced cancellation of a campaign trip to Cincinnati and several outdoor appearances here.

The Democratic presidential nominee spent most of Friday in his hotel suite, but still hopes to attend a Columbus Day parade today if he feels up to it.

The vice president also planned to tape his nationally televised speech on law and order, to be seen tonight at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

But he called off plans for a motorcade through Negro and Puerto Rican areas of Harlem and the East Bronx.

The intestinal virus struck the vice president Thursday. He completed that day's schedule and the first two appearances on his agenda Friday, before he retired to bed in an effort to shake the illness and regain his strength for the speech, his second nationally televised speech of the campaign.

Humphrey appeared at a news conference Friday with his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, and said he had opened negotiations with a television network for purchase of an hour of time on Oct. 20 for a debate with Nixon and third-party candidate George C. Wallace.

Congress Set To Adjourn; Handed LBJ Wins, Defeats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only formally remains before the 90th Congress closes the books on a record bearing several victories for President Johnson and some of his bitterest defeats.

The House failed to complete the final adjournment Friday night because a quorum of its members had disappeared, many for weekend campaign speeches. It scheduled a token session for today with hopes to adjourn sine die—or indefinitely—Monday.

The Senate, which did vote for sine die adjournment, expects to complete its formalities Monday by concurring in the hoped-for House vote.

Leaders in both branches said that all substantial business had been finished, including passage of all the necessary money bills.

The last money bills to go through were a $71.869-billion appropriation for defense—largest single money bill in history—and a $1.75-billion foreign aid measure, lowest in the program's 21-year history.

Congress wound up its work on money bills with a claimed reduction of $14.5 billion from funds requested by President Johnson. The President had sought $148 billion and got $133.5 billion.

The 1967 and 1968 sessions of the 90th were marked by extreme frustrations resulting from the Vietnamese war which caused heavy cutbacks in funds for most of the programs passed earlier in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Johnson suffered one of his sharpest disappointments in the six-week session held after the national political conventions.

This was the blocking in the Senate of his selection of his old friend Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the United States. Republicans and Southern Democrats filibustered the nomination to death.

Senate Republicans also killed with a threatened filibuster the measure to permit free television and radio time for joint appearances of major presidential candidates. Democrats had pushed this through the House with an all-night session.

Eye Special A-Ban Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to initiate promptly his survey of foreign leaders to see if international feelings run high enough to warrant a special session of the Senate to ratify a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons.

This was the word Friday from administration sources after Johnson said the need for U.S. ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty was great enough for such a session.

Although sources said a prompt start to the survey was expected, and that it would be done through routine diplomatic channels rather than personal Johnson summit meetings, there was no evidence Johnson contemplated calling the Senate back before the Nov. 5 election.

The Senate has been cool to the treaty since the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia. Despite repeated pleas from Johnson it continued to put off action since returning from its August political convention break.

The heart of Johnson's argument for fast action on the treaty was that delay by the United States, the world's mightiest nuclear power, would give foes of the nonproliferation pact in an increasing number of countries time to swing their states against ratifications.

See No Progress In Hospital Strike

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — No progress was reported Friday in talks between administration officials and union representatives at Hawthornedon State Hospital in Summit County where some 150 employees went on strike Thursday.

Hospital officials said supervisors and about 50 volunteer workers, were carrying out the duties of laundry, dietary and housekeeping personnel involved in the walkout.

Rendezvous With Booster Slated Today

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 7's astronauts juggled several minor space problems today as they aimed for a rendezvous with the second stage of the Saturn 1B rocket—and a debut on space television.

The "slight problems" brought on no talk of possible cancellation of the 11-day training maneuver for future moon expeditions, said flight director Gene Kranz.

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., capsule commander, reported a high flying case of the sniffles and was directed to take some nose drops.

"I advised him to take a decongestant," Dr. John Ziegleschmid told a press briefing. "All it does is shrink the membranes and stop a runny nose."

The medical officer also said the three astronauts apparently had solved the failure to get early reports of biomedical data from instruments attached to their suits. They simply undressed and reconnected the instrument cords for better connections, he said.

Late Friday the capsule reported the primary environmental control system which bleeds heat into space was freezing outside the spacecraft. The pilots cutoff the system and let the space radiators drain off the excess heat generated by the craft's fuel cells. Control center officials said it was only a "slight problem" and would not affect operations.

Schirra, Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham enjoyed the roominess of the Apollo space cabin, compared to the confines of the two-man Gemini capsules and the one-man Mercury flights. All three got their first night's sleep on special bunks. Earlier American space pilots dozed in their work clothes, jammed upright in their cramped quarters.

Eisele took his nap first, then he stood watch while Schirra and Cunningham slept.

Johnson Pays Flying Visit To Truman, Inks Farm Bill

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, in one of his busiest public days in a long while, paid a visit to former President Harry S. Truman, practiced diplomacy, signed a major bill and even found time to show off his grandson.

Johnson also got in some criticism of Congress and watched the launching of the Apollo spacecraft Friday before heading to his Texas ranch with a stopoff at the Truman home in Independence, Mo.

He came halfway across the country to Truman's white frame Victorian home to sign proclamations setting aside Oct. 24 as United Nations Day 1968 and dedicating this 23rd birthday of the world organization to Truman as one of its inflicting supporters.

"Generations still unborn will remember and be grateful to Harry Truman for his leadership" when the world emerged from the worst war it has known, Johnson said in a statement read in the Truman living room.

The crowd outside the Truman home provided Johnson with an unusually warm greeting. And he loved it. He went handshaking and someone gave him a red rose.

They shouted at seeing his daughter, Luci Nugent, and his bouncy, blond 15-month-old grandson, Lyn, who came along from Washington.

Johnson stood his grandson on top of his motorcade car.

"Give 'em a big smile and a wave," he coached.

In Washington, a Congress trying desperately to adjourn spent Johnson bills and business. He reacted to some of it with unexpected speed.

Within hours after Congress passed a joint resolution calling for a United Nations Day, Johnson was on his way to get Truman in on the action.

As he flew to Kansas City, Mo., Johnson dispatched from his presidential jet the congratulations to the orbiting Apollo 7 astronauts and all concerned with their "splendid beginning."

Johnson had kept appointments with the foreign ministers of France, Great Britain and Italy Friday morning and he was with Michel Debre of France when the space launching occurred.

While Air Force One waited at Kansas City Airport, Johnson came aboard after visiting Truman and signed a farm bill providing a one-year extension of wheat, cotton, feed grains, rice, milk and wool production control programs.

Rhodesian Talks Near Showdown

GIBRALTAR (AP) — The deadlocked summit talks on Rhodesia's political future—African rule or continued white minority government—reach a possibly crucial stage today after two days of "tough" negotiations.

Should the impasse continue, it is generally expected that Prime Ministers Harold Wilson of Britain and Ian Smith of Rhodesia will seek a face saving formula to avoid a total collapse in the talks.

In that event the most likely possibility is believed to be an interruption allowing the leaders to return home for consultations.

Informed sources said Wilson and Smith were prepared to stay as long as necessary, but both sides have indicated the talks aboard the British assault ship Fearless in Gibraltar harbor may end Sunday.

The British Parliament reconvenes Monday and Wilson would be expected to answer questions in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Sources on both sides made it clear there has been no breakthrough on the key issue of the dispute since Smith declared Rhodesia independent from Britain in November 1965, a move Britain regards as illegal.

Humphrey's Son Stumps Ohio For Father

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
One of Hubert H. Humphrey's staunchest supporters said in Columbus Friday that the nation's young people are beginning to turn to Humphrey as their candidate for president.

Robert A. Humphrey, the vice president's 24-year-old son, told newsmen:

"My dad is getting less heckling now than before and I think it is because the young are beginning to realize that the Democratic Party is the only place for them."

He said young people are asking less about the Vietnam war now, and more about how to correct the nation's problems.

Young Humphrey was in Columbus this weekend for a round of press conferences, and to attend today's Purdue-Ohio State football game. He was accompanied by his wife, Donna.

Meanwhile, Humphrey, the candidate, was felled by a flu bug Friday and had to cancel his scheduled speeches in Cincinnati.

But his remarks prepared for delivery at the National Newspaper Association's fall conference were read by John J. Gilligan, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate.

In the speech, Humphrey criticized Richard M. Nixon, his Republican opponent, for, he claimed, failing to speak up for education.

He said that Nixon while vice president in 1960 broke a Senate tie vote by going against an education bill that would have provided $1 billion for school construction and teachers' salaries throughout the nation.

Fifty education laws have been passed in the last five years, Humphrey said, and "I fought hard to win these laws."

He said the standard nine-month school program is a waste of valuable resources, and promised that if elected he would encourage school systems to experiment with year-round school programs.

Gilligan appeared in Mount Vernon earlier Friday in behalf of his own candidacy and compared gun control to requirements for licensing and registration of cars.

"We take the driver's licenses away from drunks and mental incompetents, but we let them have guns," he said.

Gilligan's Republican opponent, William B. Saxbe, in Cleveland Friday, charged the Johnson administration with political manipulation of federal highway trust funds.

He said a federal freeze on highway funds has caused delay of a highway construction projects in Ohio.

The highway funds were frozen shortly after Congress forced the administration to make spending cuts in order to get its income tax surcharge.

In Toledo Friday, Sen. Thomas Kuchel of California, leader of a Republican "truth squad," said Humphrey has had a "complete change of heart on the issue of televised campaign debates."

Kuchel said that as a senator in 1964, Humphrey voted against a candidate in 1968 advocates debates.

In reply to the statement, Humphrey's son said in Columbus that the public deserve a debate between the three presidential candidates because there are so many pressing questions.

He added that if there is to be a "truth squad," it should be following Nixon.

Nixon Relaxes, Plans Final Drive For Election Victory

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is taking three days off the campaign trail to plan what he says will be intensified vote-seeking efforts during the final three weeks of the presidential campaign.

The Republican presidential candidate flew to the seaside resort at Key Biscayne after telling an enthusiastic audience at Dallas Friday night that he is running hard and will win a big victory on Nov. 5.

"You haven't seen anything yet," he told a crowd of more than 10,000 jammed into the Southern Methodist University fieldhouse in Dallas.

Just before leaving Texas for Florida, Nixon made a television appearance over 25 stations in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

In fielding questions from a panel picked by campaign aides, the GOP candidate said:

"I think we are in too many countries in foreign aid... foreign aid does not create respect sometimes: It creates contempt."

"I'm not going to move away from the price support program" now in effect "until I get something better."

"I intend to make the United States first in space"—a big item in Texas, home of the Space Center at Houston.

He said the only way Democratic rival Hubert H. Humphrey can win is to have a sizeable number of Republicans vote for third-party candidate George C. Wallace. He called a vote for Wallace a vote for Humphrey.

The Republican nominee said "I intend to have the youngest White House staff of any president in history." He also said he wanted to give younger people "a piece of the action."

Nixon will remain in Florida until Tuesday, holding tactical meetings with key campaign aides.

In a statement issued in Dallas, Nixon called the 10 per cent federal income surtax a "war tax" and said it must be repealed as soon as possible without offering any precise time table.

7 Students Hurt In Auto Crash

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Seven Mount Union College students were injured, three of them seriously, early today when their car crashed into a tree on the college campus.

Police said the driver, Jeff Nickle, of Wickliffe, lost control of the car on a curve. He was reported in poor condition at Aultman Hospital in Canton.

Listed in poor condition at Alliance City Hospital were Kathy Stover, 18, of East Liverpool, and Nancy Albrecht, 21, of Youngstown.

Reported in fair condition at the hospital here were Fargo Hardy, of Cleveland Heights; Jeff Headman, Ashtabula, and James Krabill, of Minerva.

Eleanor Parks, 19, of Pittsburgh, was released after treatment at the Alliance hospital.

The students had been decorating fraternity and sorority houses in preparation of the day's homecoming at the college.

Wallace's PA System Fails; Tomato Hurlled At Candidate

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A key weapon in George C. Wallace's running battle with hecklers—a booming public address system—failed him Friday night, and thousands of hooting protesters forced him to cut short his speech.

Angered over the incident, which also included a tomato and a hippie-type love medallion being thrown at him, Wallace canceled a scheduled local television taping session and turned his presidential campaign toward the Far West.

The heckling at Denver came after speeches in Fargo, N.D., and Casper, Wyo., which were so devoid of noisy protestations that Wallace's usual fiery oratory actually seemed a bit listless.

Wallace's Denver audience of about 10,000 included a sizeable number of vocal supporters, but the protesters, many of them in hippie trappings, would not be shouted down.

When the microphone system seemed to fade the third-party presidential candidate finally gave up. He said to the hecklers, "I can tell you that after Nov. 5, people like you are going to be through in this country," and left the podium.

Both the tomato and the medallion were short of their mark. When the medallion was thrown, Wallace stepped from behind his bulletproof lectern and dared his hecklers to "throw another rock."

Several fist fights broke out in the crowd, and police hustled off at least one young man. No arrests were reported.

In his speech at Casper, Wallace bore down heavily on the Vietnam issue. He repeated his stand that the war should be won militarily if peace talks fail, and added:

"I can assure you we are not going to stay much longer in Southeast Asia. But we are not going to withdraw unilaterally. We are not going to withdraw dishonorably."

Bond Increased In Narcotic Case

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bond was increased Friday from $2,000 to $25,000 on Albert L. Lederer, 22-year-old University of Cincinnati student charged in connection with one of the largest narcotics hauls in the history of the city.

Hamilton County Municipal Court Judge William S. Mathews said further studies of the 57 two-pound packets of hashish—a form of marijuana, showed that the narcotics would have brought more than $300,000 if sold by the ounce on the retail market—thus the bond increase.

Call Protests For Nov. 5

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Students for a Democratic Society's national council has received a call for a nationwide student strike and big city demonstrations coinciding with the Nov. 5 presidential election.

The proposal was outlined in a paper circulated Friday night among SDS members attending the opening session of a weekend conference on the University of Colorado campus. It, and a bundle of other suggestions, are due for discussion at workshops and plenary sessions today and Sunday.

Call Protests For Nov. 5

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Students for a Democratic Society's national council has received a call for a nationwide student strike and big city demonstrations coinciding with the Nov. 5 presidential election.

The proposal was outlined in a paper circulated Friday night among SDS members attending the opening session of a weekend conference on the University of Colorado campus. It, and a bundle of other suggestions, are due for discussion at workshops and plenary sessions today and Sunday.

Congress Set To Adjourn; Handed LBJ Wins, Defeats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only formality remains before the 90th Congress closes the books on a record bearing several victories for President Johnson and some of his bitterest defeats. The House failed to complete the final adjournment Friday night because a quorum of its members had disappeared, many for weekend campaign speeches. It scheduled a token session for today with hopes to adjourn sine die—or indefinitely—Monday.

The Senate, which did vote for sine die adjournment, expects to complete its formalities Monday by concurring in the hoped-for House vote.

Leaders in both branches said that all substantial business had been finished, including passage of all the necessary money bills.

The last money bills to go through were a $71.869-billion appropriation for defense—largest single money bill in history—and a $1.75-billion foreign aid measure, lowest in the program's 21-year history.

Congress wound up its work on money bills with a claimed reduction of $14.5 billion from funds requested by President Johnson. The President had sought $148 billion and got $133.5 billion.

The 1967 and 1968 sessions of the 90th were marked by extreme frustrations resulting from the Vietnamese war which caused heavy cutbacks in funds for most of the programs passed earlier in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Johnson suffered one of his sharpest disappointments in the six-week session held after the national political conventions.

This was the blocking in the Senate of his selection of his old friend Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the United States. Republicans and Southern Democrats filibustered the nomination to death.

Senate Republicans also killed with a threatened filibuster the measure to permit free television and radio time for joint appearances of major presidential candidates. Democrats had pushed this through the House with an all-night session.

Within hours after Congress passed a joint resolution calling for a United Nations Day, Johnson was on his way to get Truman in on the action.

As he flew to Kansas City, Mo., Johnson dispatched from his presidential jet the congratulations to the orbiting Apollo 7 astronauts and all concerned with their "splendid beginning."

Johnson had kept appointments with the foreign ministers of France, Great Britain and Italy Friday morning and he was with Michel Debre of France when the space launching occurred.

While Air Force One waited at Kansas City Airport, Johnson came aboard after visiting Truman and signed a farm bill providing a one-year extension of wheat, cotton, feed grains, rice, milk and wool production control programs.

Johnson Pays Flying Visit To Truman, Inks Farm Bill

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, in one of his busiest public days in a long while, paid a visit to former President Harry S. Truman, practiced diplomacy, signed a major bill and even found time to show off his grandson.

Johnson also got in some criticism of Congress and watched the launching of the Apollo spacecraft Friday before heading to his Texas ranch with a stopoff at the Truman home in Independence, Mo.

He came halfway across the country to Truman's white frame Victorian home to sign proclamations setting aside Oct. 24 as United Nations Day 1968 and dedicating this 23rd birthday of the world organization to Truman as one of its inflexible supporters.

"Generations still unborn will remember and be grateful to Harry Truman for his leadership in that dark and confusing time" when the world emerged from the worst war it has known, Johnson said in a statement read in the Truman living room.

The crowd outside the Truman home provided Johnson with an unusually warm greeting. And he loved it. He went handshaking and someone gave him a red rose.

They shouted at seeing his daughter, Luci Nugent, and his bouncy, blond 15-month-old grandson, Lyn, who came along from Washington.

Johnson stood his grandson on top of his motorcade car.

"Give 'em a big smile and a wave," he coached.

In Washington, a Congress trying desperately to adjourn sent Johnson bills and business. He reacted to some of it with unexpected speed.

Within hours after Congress passed a joint resolution calling for a United Nations Day, Johnson was on his way to get Truman in on the action.

As he flew to Kansas City, Mo., Johnson dispatched from his presidential jet the congratulations to the orbiting Apollo 7 astronauts and all concerned with their "splendid beginning."

Rhodesian Talks Near Showdown

GIBRALTAR (AP) — The deadlocked summit talks on Rhodesia's political future—African rule or continued white minority government—reach a possibly crucial stage today after two days of "tough" negotiations.

Should the impasse continue, it is generally expected that Prime Ministers Harold Wilson of Britain and Ian Smith of Rhodesia will seek a face saving formula to avoid a total collapse in the talks.

In that event the most likely possibility is believed to be an interruption allowing the leaders to return home for consultations.

Informed sources said Wilson and Smith were prepared to stay as long as necessary, but both sides have indicated the talks aboard the British assault ship Fearless in Gibraltar harbor may end Sunday.

The British Parliament reconvenes Monday and Wilson would be expected to answer questions in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Sources on both sides made it clear there has been no breakthrough on the key issue of the dispute since Smith declared Rhodesia independent from Britain in November 1965, a move Britain regards as illegal.

Gang Murder In Youngstown

Clautti, the merchandise manager of a Youngstown discount store, was killed by a single shotgun blast Friday as he prepared to leave his South Side home for work.

Home Agent Tips

An electric blanket has many features in its favor. First and foremost, are its sleep-ability and wash-ability. Because an automatic heating blanket gives uniform warmth to all the body's cold spots without the weight of piled-on coverings or the constriction of bed socks, it lulls the user into the bliss of a sound night's sleep. And how convenient to be able to launder it in an automatic washer or by hand.

In fact, the dominant DON'T in electric blanket care is DON'T DRY CLEAN—because cleaning solvents can damage the insulating material which protects the wiring.

Manufacturers contribute fast familiarity with a new automatic blanket by including specific directions on "how to" make the bed, regulate warmth, use safely, and launder. Basically, what is good for one electric blanket is also beneficial for another. However, due to differences in design and fiber content, it is best to follow the enclosed instructions to the letter. An alternative is to consult directions in the washer's use of soak, suds rinse, and spin cycles. The following basics care manual for correct timing serve as a helpful review of machine- or hand-washing procedures:

Wash as soon as the blanket starts to be soiled—not only before summer storage. Don't wait for soil to become imbedded, or the gentle handling which is mandatory may not be adequate to do a thorough cleansing job.

DISCONNECT the control. Tie any dangling parts loosely in a washcloth or small towel, and shake the blanket gently to remove dust or lint.

Pretreat soiled binding or spots with thick soap or detergent lather, or with a suds solution rubbed in respectfully with a soft brush.

Farming Is Still Family Enterprise

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,

Corporate farms represented less than one percent of all commercial farms; operated seven percent of the land in farms; and accounted for 4 percent of the gross sales of farm products.

These statistics on corporate farms in 22 states in the middle and far west are based on data collected during survey last spring. Data on corporate farm-released later.

More than two-thirds of the corporate farms in the 22 states were family businesses, with farming or ranching the major activity. And family corporations represented three-fifths of the largest corporations having gross farm sales of $500,000 or more.

Thirteen percent of the corporate farms were tied in with agribusiness activities. Typically, these involved the manufacture or sale of feed, fertilizer, and farm machinery, or the processing and marketing of farm products.

THE off-farm business activities of about 20 percent of the corporate farms were not directly related to agriculture. These were firms usually engaged in wholesale or retail businesses which also had a farm business. The farming activities of such firms generally were small.

Two-fifths of the farm corporations sold less than $40,000 worth of farm products annually. Sixteen percent had gross farm sales of $200,000 or more; 6 percent reached the $500,000 mark. Many of these larger operations involved cattle feeding, or turkey, egg, and broiler plants.

Corporate farming in the 22-state area was concentrated in the Mountain Region. These eight states could lay claim to two fifths of the total number of corporate farms and had 80 percent of the land operated by all corporations.

Tips On Fire Prevention

In case of fire:

Get everybody out of the house. Call the fire department. If you smell smoke, do not rush out into the hallway. First, place the palm of your hand against the door. If the door feels cool, open it slightly. Pass your hand across the opening. If the air seems cool, it should be safe to enter the hallway.

Close doors behind you as you leave the house. After everyone is safely out of the house, call the fire department.

If the door feels hot, that hallway is already filled with deadly heated gases. Keep the door closed. Use another escape route, or wait at a window for rescue. Arouse people by shouting.

Right now, before fire breaks out in your home, figure out two possible routes to the ground from every room in the house, especially the bedrooms. Hold actual fire drills, until everyone knows what to do.

Post the number of the fire department near your phone.

Chlorination Recommended For Home Water Supplies

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

There is great risk in drinking contaminated water, since water-borne bacteria and viruses can cause typhoid fever, dysentery, infectious hepatitis and other disease.

Home and milkhouse water supplies should be tested for safety at least once a year and whenever contamination is suspected, advises Melville Palmer, Extension Agricultural Engineer at The Ohio State University. County health departments, when contacted, will arrange a bacteriological water test.

Chlorine is the most widely accepted water disinfectant for several reasons. It is readily available in powder, tablet or liquid form, it doesn't require a high degree of experience on the part of the user, and it's relatively safe to use.

Chlorine solutions must be thoroughly mixed with water and remain in the water long enough to destroy bacteria and other organisms.

SHOCK chlorination—the adding of a strong chlorine solution to a water source and the entire water system to kill bacteria and other organisms—is recommended by Palmer following new well construction, pump installation or any time the water system is opened for repair. Shock chlorination of a well and water system every few months can also be very helpful in keeping iron bacteria under control.

Steps to follow in performing shock chlorination are as follows: Clean the well, cistern or spring box to remove any floating debris, suspended foreign matter and deposits on interior surfaces.

Add enough chlorine to the well or other water source to provide a chlorine concentration of about 200 mg/l. Use 3 pints of 5-1/4 percent chlorine laundry bleach for each 100 gallons of water before pouring it into the well. Storage capacity of depth per foot in wells is as follows: 4 inch diameter — 0.6 gallons; 5 inch diameter — 1.0 gallons; 6 inch diameter — 1.5 gallons.

Let the pump operate and use a hose to recirculate the chlorinated water out of and back into the well. Wash down the well casing and drop pipe. Add more chlorine solution if the water does not have a distinct chlorine odor.

Open each faucet in the water system, one at a time, until the water has a distinct chlorine odor, then shut it off.

LEAVE the chlorinated water in the well and water system at least overnight or, preferably, 24 hours. Then, pump the chlorinated water out of the well and flush the water lines.

After shock chlorination it may be necessary to remove residues of iron bacteria by blowing out the pipes and fittings with compressed air and following with a second shock chlorination.

Water from drilled wells should also be chlorinated continuously if proper location, construction and protection of the well does not result in safe water at all times. Health departments can make recommendations on how to chlorinate continuously.

If water from springs, cisterns, dug wells or farm ponds is used in the home or milkhouse it should be chlorinated continuously with an automatic chlorinator. These water sources are easily contaminated, even when they are well located and protected from obvious sources of contamination such as septic tanks and feedlots. Farm pond water requires filtration, using a slow sand filter, in addition to chlorination.

In an emergency, water can be purified by boiling it vigorously for 2 minutes to kill disease-causing organisms, Palmer adds.

Ohio U Holds Talks On Strike

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University and union officials scheduled a 10 a. m. meeting today in Columbus in a last-ditch effort to avoid a strike by nonteaching employees.

University personnel director Ward Wilson said Friday night the meeting would take place in the offices of attorneys representing Local 1699 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

About 800 OU maintenance, food service and custodial employees have been working without a contract since their pact expired Oct. 2.

Negotiations since then have failed to iron out an impasse over the university's use of contract labor.

The union membership is scheduled to meet Saturday night at the Athens County Fairgrounds to consider a strike or other "economic action" against the university.

Oscar McGee, president of Local 1699, said Friday, "The possibility of a strike at this time is very great."

The union wants OU to give a written guarantee that it would not use outside workmen to staff new university facilities. Wilson, in rejecting the demand, said the union wanted "a policy statement aimed at limiting management's authority and responsibility to contract for services consistent with sound economic practices."

Ohio Population Said 10,364,000

When it comes time to "shelf" a clean electric blanket, remember that all of them are already permanently moth-proofed, so there is no need to use moth preventives which may injure the plastic parts. Store the blanket in its original package or in a similar container, and avoid placing heavy objects on top of it. Tuck in the instruction book, too, and the guarantee. Store controls separately.

RECENT developments include electric blankets of the "thermal-weave" type with waffle-like depressions; separate hangers for attaching controls to headboards, and bottom snap fasteners which allow use either flat or fitted like our sheets. One control even includes an alarm clock that can automatically switch the blanket off and simultaneously wake up the sleeper!

An innovation in heated blankets is a type which warms by water rather than by wires. This kind contains watertight, flexible plastic tubes through which electrically warmed water circulates. It can be slept on or under, can be dialed for the desired degree heat, and is claimed to be so durable that it can be crumpled or folded without damage. This type, also machine-washable, should be line-dried—never cleaned, wrung, or ironed.

Also available in the electric bedding lineup are mattress pads, footwarmers (half pads for localized warmth), coverlets, and sheets. Part of their appeal is lightness of weight, making them portable for away-from-home sleeping. All require frequent laundering because of body contact or surface exposure; again, these articles must be washed—never dry-cleaned. Launder by hand or machine according to their specific instructions which stress gentle sudsing and squeezing, plus line- or machine-drying.

Ohio U Holds Talks On Strike

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University and union officials scheduled a 10 a. m. meeting today in Columbus in a last-ditch effort to avoid a strike by nonteaching employees.

University personnel director Ward Wilson said Friday night the meeting would take place in the offices of attorneys representing Local 1699 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

About 800 OU maintenance, food service and custodial employees have been working without a contract since their pact expired Oct. 2.

Negotiations since then have failed to iron out an impasse over the university's use of contract labor.

The union membership is scheduled to meet Saturday night at the Athens County Fairgrounds to consider a strike or other "economic action" against the university.

Oscar McGee, president of Local 1699, said Friday, "The possibility of a strike at this time is very great."

The union wants OU to give a written guarantee that it would not use outside workmen to staff new university facilities.

Wilson, in rejecting the demand, said the union wanted "a policy statement aimed at limiting management's authority and responsibility to contract for services consistent with sound economic practices."

Ohio Population Said 10,364,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau said Friday that Ohio's population as of July 1, 1966, was estimated at 10,364,000. That's an 885,000 or 6.8 per cent increase over the 1960 census figure.

Soil Conservation Chief Remembers Dust Bowl

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Dust Bowl of the early 1930s spilled over most of the Great Plains — from Texas to Montana — spewing its dark, rolling clouds across millions of acres of wind-stricken farm land.

There are strains of this awe-some legacy when Don Williams speaks of soil and water. It's a subtle respect some men reserve for great works of art, knowing that rarely in a lifetime can such creations be duplicated.

Williams, 63, will retire in January as head of the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, a position held since 1953. He will continue his efforts, however, for two more years with the Ford Foundation in India.

Much of what conservation means in modern agriculture evolved during Williams' government career, which began in 1935 when he became superintendent of a Civilian Conservation Corps camp in his native South Dakota.

Congress created the Soil Conservation Service as a permanent agency of the Department of Agriculture the same year, as Williams was teaching young men to build dams while building themselves.

"Many people say the thing that triggered it off was the Dust Bowl situation, but actually many agricultural leaders had been calling attention to the problems long before that," Williams said in an interview.

"The Dust Bowl did bring it all to a head, and in that sense caused public awareness of the problems we faced in soil and water conservation."

Conservation in the depression period of the 1930s emanated from the public works programs advocated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal — to put unemployed young men to work.

But the emphasis of the Soil Conservation Service and conservation slowly changed from the hectic forays against blowing dust and unemployment into a more deliberate, thoughtful campaign for preventing catastrophe instead of repairing damage after it occurred.

Today the service provides the technical assistance farmers need to carry out a wide range of conservation practices on their land, from terraces and small dams to reduce water erosion, to grass seeding and tillage methods for retaining moisture.

Major programs in flood protection and prevention are part of the service responsibility through small watershed program sponsored by local groups.

The key to the system is the local "soil and water conservation district"—more than 3,000 of them—which works with service to develop local action programs for farmers.

"I think the fact that our people are trained to work with local people in assisting them—not dominating them—has been very important," Williams said.

The insistence that his service work through locally run groups has resulted in relatively little political controversy over the years, Williams said.

"We diligently and contently pursued this with state governments, irrespective of party politics," he said. "Conservation is not a partisan matter, locally, statewide or nationally."

Much remains to be done in soil and water conservation on agricultural land, Williams said, but some of the greatest challenges lie with urban development and the expansion of today's society into the suburbs.

Clean water for home use, recreation, industry and agriculture is a major concern, he said. Pollution touches both rural and urban people.

"Americans always seem to be a little tardy in doing preventive work instead of curative work," Williams said. "It's going to take some large investment, and some tinkering needs to be done in our laws. But basically we have the organization and experience to do the job."

Williams, who has been in India six times since 1960, will work with officials there in organizing and developing water policies to help boost food production.

Slum Therapy Booming In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The traditional idea of leisurely sessions of psychoanalysis may be all right for those who have the time and money. But something different is needed to deal with the mental ills found in city slums.

That something different is being applied in Los Angeles and is called "instant therapy." This innovation in down-to-earth psychiatry has chalked up a steady growth since its conception seven years ago and its practitioners soon will break ground for a $3.7 million, seven-story center dedicated to its practice.

Alfred Cannon, University of California at Los Angeles psychiatrist, believes the old ways of treating mental and emotional ailments have little value in the slum areas of modern cities.

"The Freudian model of psychoanalysis stresses examination of the patient's past in order to understand his present illness," says Dr. Cannon. "Such treatment is lengthy and therefore expensive, and there aren't enough therapists to go around."

"This approach presumes a white, middle class background and education—you have to have it to be able to communicate with the psychoanalyst."

"We have learned to stress brief treatment. Since you may see your patient only once, you have to get into it fast—you've got one time to do your thing and that's it."

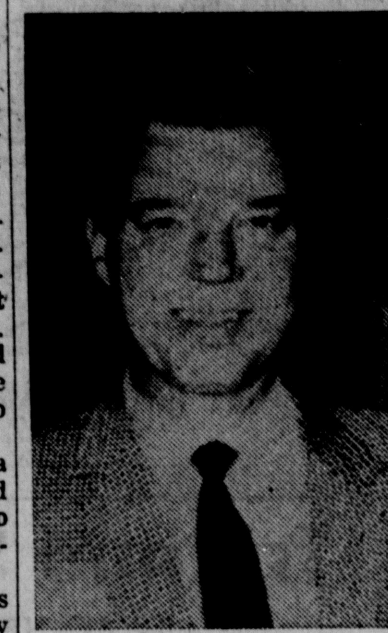

Dr. Cannon, 40, a tall, athletic Negro who took his medical degree at Columbia University, has become known as a busy promoter of antipathy projects, especially since the Watts riots of 65.

His concern with conditions in south-central Los Angeles dates back, however, to 1961, when he began working as a volunteer in free clinics.

"I noticed there were far too few mental health clinics in the inner city," he said in an interview.

NFL Official Is Speaker At Rotary

FRED SWEARINGEN

Fred Swearingen, owner and operator of Swearingen Sporting Goods, Athens, was guest speaker at Circleville Rotary Club Thursday.

Swearingen attended Ohio University and after graduation from OU became a high school baseball coach. He is the former president of Athens Retail Merchants Assn. and has lived in Athens for many years.

Married, he has two children. He is presently a field judge in the National Football League. He has officiated in the Pro Bowl (NFL All-Star game) and Miami Bowl in Florida and has officiated many NFL championship games.

He is a member of OU Hall of Fame and a highly decorated veteran of World War II. He holds the Navy Cross.

Prior to his entry in the NFL, he officiated football in the Mid American Conference. In 1960, he entered the NFL as a field judge and has worked actively in the league since that time.

He explained the duties of an NFL referee and enlightened Rotary members of the duties of the six positions in professional officiating.

He also explained that our NFL official may travel as many as 3,000 miles to officiate a game. Swearingen has traveled as many as 45,000 miles a year in his officiating duties. A year usually consists of approximately 21 games.

view. "Most of the institutions were outside the core, where people who needed help most couldn't reach them."

"Even the clinics that were inside the core were largely rejected. Poor people are not looking to be analyzed, they are looking for something to ease the pains of living."

"I had to find some way of reaching them, so I established a mental health center in 1961 in a small neighborhood church, the Church of Christian Fellowship, which has a membership of about 300. We had no money, and we depended on voluntary professional help. Our fees were as low as 25 cents—whatever they could pay."

"It worked. Our patient load grew and in 1966 we obtained a $900,000 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health. We moved into a furniture store vacated after the 1965 riots where we now treat more than 5,000 patients a year."

The $3.7 million center, funded equally by the state, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and private donations, will be an expansion of the furniture store facility and will bear the same name: Central City Community Mental Health Center.

Next door to the South Broadway mental health center is a small office with a placard: Community Service Center. It is one of the most successful ways yet found for catching patients.

"To many of these people, 'mental health' means you're crazy," says the center's white administrator, Richard Sanville. "They won't come in the 'mental health' door but they will go to the service center."

Ohio Demos, Republicans In Spat

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Efforts by House Democrats to get research assistance in drafting proposed legislation apparently have "caused some distress on the part of the Republican House Speaker," Rep. John C. McDonald said Friday.

McDonald, a Newark Democrat, was replying to a charge by Speaker Charles F. Kurfess, a Republican, that House Democrats were attempting to use the Legislative Service Commission for partisan political purposes.

McDonald, House minority leader, had announced he was appointing several task forces to work on legislation for the next General Assembly. He said he would ask the commission, research arm of the Legislature, for assistance in drafting a budget and other legislation.

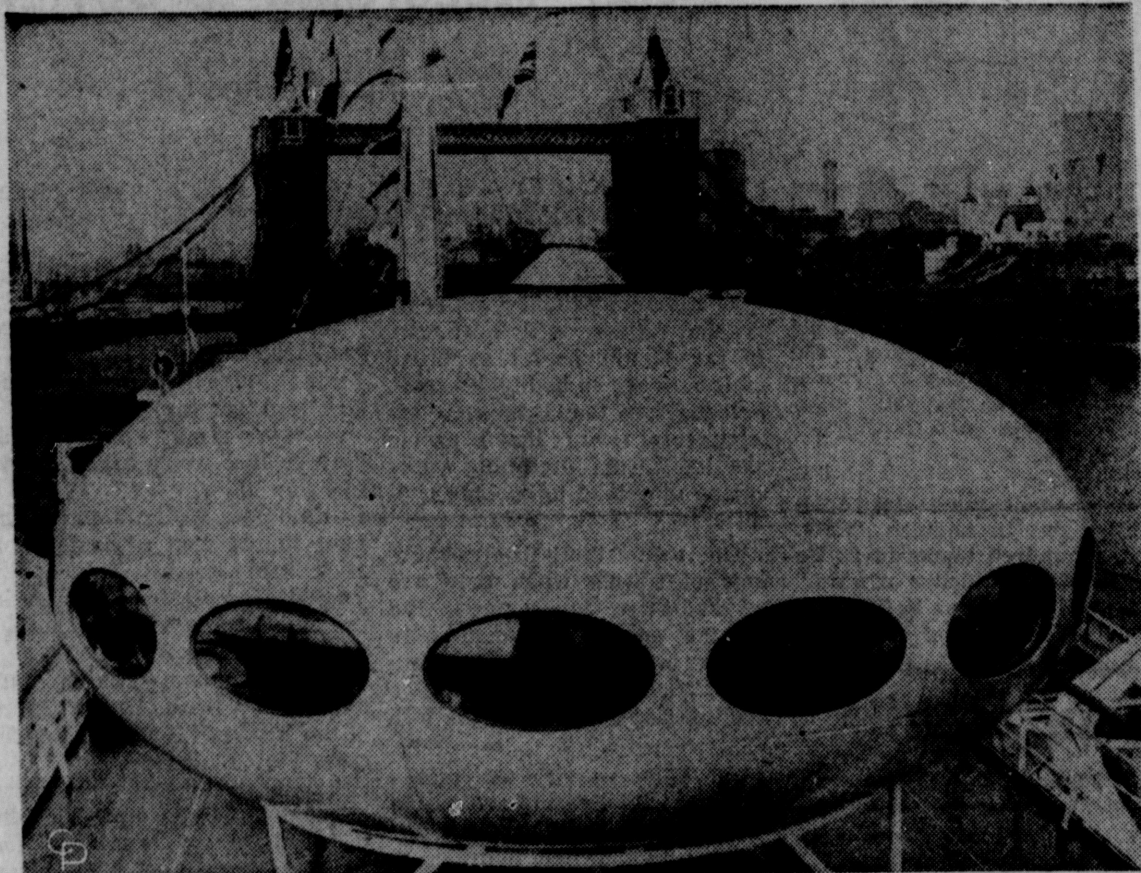

Kurfess noted that the commission is to provide information for all legislators and is to be as impartial as possible.

He said McDonald's task forces were established for political purposes and "that Assistance is being requested during the most active part of a legislative election campaign."

McDonald replied that "the minority party's right to factual information from the Legislative Service Commission is one provided by law and one that Republican legislators may better appreciate after Nov. 5."

He said he had been assured by commission director David A. Johnston that factual information concerning the operation of state government will continue to be furnished Democratic legislators.

Let Purina Range Chow Blocks... Turn those Stalks into Pounds

A lot of farmers run feeder calves in their stalk fields. But stalks and "down" corn don't provide the balanced nutrition the calves need to maintain their weight and condition.

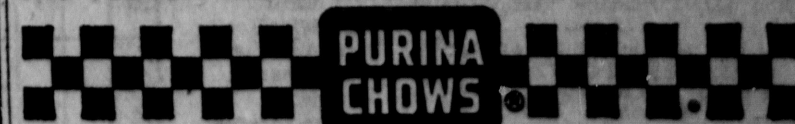

Cattlemen are fast finding out that the easiest way to supply this nutrition is to feed protein-fortified Purina Range Chow Blocks. And here's why cattlemen go for Range Chow Blocks:

- Easy to handle—each block weighs 33 1/4 lbs.
- Saves time—feed about once a week.
- Highly palatable—cattle like them and eat them easily.
- Weather resistant—should hold together in all kinds of weather.
- Easy to store—long storage life, so order now for all winter.
- Gives equal chance to all cattle—smaller and timid cattle aren't crowded out.

Why deny your cattle the nutritional supplements they'll need while running in stalk fields. Call us right away and place your order for Purina Range Chow Blocks. They'll help keep your stock in good shape until you start 'em on full feed. And remember, if your cattle go into the feedlot heavier, they're bound to come out faster.

Let Purina Range Chow Blocks... Turn those Stalks into Pounds

A lot of farmers run feeder calves in their stalk fields. But stalks and "down" corn don't provide the balanced nutrition the calves need to maintain their weight and condition.

Cattlemen are fast finding out that the easiest way to supply this nutrition is to feed protein-fortified Purina Range Chow Blocks. And here's why cattlemen go for Range Chow Blocks:

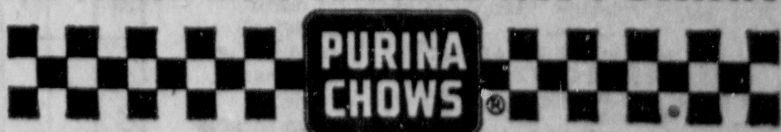

- Easy to handle—each block weighs 33 1/4 lbs.
- Saves time—feed about once a week.
- Highly palatable—cattle like them and eat them easily.
- Weather resistant—should hold together in all kinds of weather.
- Easy to store—long storage life, so order now for all winter.
- Gives equal chance to all cattle—smaller and timid cattle aren't crowded out.

Why deny your cattle the nutritional supplements they'll need while running in stalk fields. Call us right away and place your order for Purina Range Chow Blocks. They'll help keep your stock in good shape until you start 'em on full feed. And remember, if your cattle go into the feedlot heavier, they're bound to come out faster.

'Sexless' Ads Challenged

It what could become a landmark court case, the American Newspaper Assn. and the Washington Evening Star have filed suit asking for an injunction to forbid the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission from prohibiting separate "male" and "female" columns in help-wanted advertisements in newspapers.

The commission had announced "guidelines" to go into effect Dec. 1 which would prohibit the advertising of job offerings by sex, unless "sex is a bona fide occupational qualification for the particular job involved."

In particular, the commission would outlaw the labeling of columns of classified ads either "male" or "female." If the commission's "guide lines" are permitted to stand, each individual job and will have to be separately identified as to sex, and then only if sex is a "bona fide" requirement for the job—whatever that means.

One immediate result of the commission's ruling, of course, would be a higher cost of recruitment to employers. But prospective employees answering ads also would waste much time applying for positions which might be sexless in the eyes of the commission, but in which they would be anything but comfortable.

Perhaps Washington sees no reason why the boss' secretary shouldn't be a man or why the officer on the beat shouldn't be a woman, but then not many people these days think government officials are in touch with reality, anyway.

The Dry Run

Most crime stories from England concern daring thieves who rob trains, trucks and cars.

These stories make American criminals tremble with jealousy, for they generally report that the robbers got away with thousands of dollars worth of jewels, money, or such easy-to-sell articles as TV sets and washing machines.

A new crime story from England will make U.S. criminals a bit less eager to emigrate. It reports that some daring thieves made off with a truckload of 10,000 gin bottles.

There's no telling what they did when they found that the bottles had been en route to a distillery — to be filled.

Mightier Than Bombs

The theme of "The Cuban Thing," a Broadway play, stirred the ire of anti-Castro groups, who proceeded to try to kill it off in a revolutionary — or counterrevolutionary — fashion: By disrupting a preview performance with tear gas.

It wasn't the bombs, however, that did it in — it was the reviews.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things are looking up for the chain food stores, like profits and stock prices and the outlook.

A couple of years ago these same things looked terrible. Profits were down, once placid housewives were making ominous gestures with their handbags, and stamps and promotional games were being attacked from all directions.

No wonder supermarket stock prices were depressed. Every one was unhappy and grumbling. The customers argued and boycotted; the cashiers and managers were edgy; profit margins shrank to near zero. The whole picture was sad.

Now, just a couple of years later, Wall Street analysts detect a new odor about supermarket stocks. It's as if the air freshener on the shelves had popped their sprayheads, for these are the same stocks that smelled like the fish counter in 1966.

Wall Street analysts are susceptible, as is well known, to fads and fantasies. One analyst makes a discovery and, like dress designers or comics, the others borrow the material. But there's more to this present interest: Facts.

The housewife has called off her boycotts, and consumers for some reason are spending with abandon, regardless of the tax increase. Retail prices have been keeping ahead of prices the grocers must pay for the produce they sell. And so profits have risen this year, especially for some of the regional chains.

Helping create the more profitable look are lessons in efficiency and management learned during the troubles of 1966. Some stores have returned to original methods of competitive prices, few services, no frills, no stamps and even fewer products for shoppers to choose from.

To broaden profit margins, nonfood products continue to be added to the 8,000 items found in many large supermarkets. Several large national chains also operate drugstores, where markups generally are higher than on food.

Diversification of a sort has been introduced also. Some operators of discount department stores are operating nearby supermarkets in order to promote the human traffic needed in their operations.

The inflationary atmosphere, ironically, may be helping also. The housewife has become used to rising prices. If anything, she now expects less rather than more for her money. It wasn't that way two years ago.

Stamps and games were going strong in 1965 and 1966, and everyone was amused and happy so long as it appeared that everyone was a winner. Then came inflation, and with it came more attention to pennies, nickels and dimes.

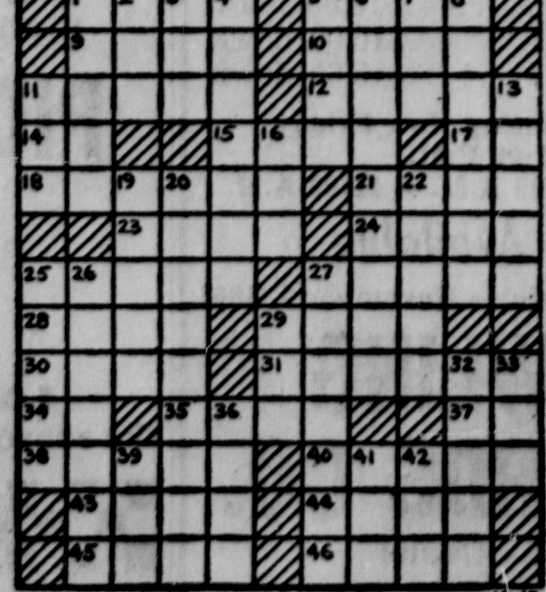

As price increases accelerated in 1966, especially for food, the housewife grew less sporting and more serious. She boycotted stores. She demanded an end to games. "Let the gasoline stations play games," she said.

Stamp companies have by no means gone out of business as a result. Some, in fact, are thriving, but hardly booming as they were a couple of years ago. A good deal of the hullabaloo and carnivality is missing from shopping centers.

Physicians carefully weigh the problems in each patient before they decide whether or not the blood pressure should be lowered by drugs and to what extent and how rapidly it should be done. Such careful consideration can only be based on a doctor's long experience.

At a recent convention of the American Medical Association in Atlantic City, a new experimental drug was reported by a team of physicians from a Cleveland clinic. Dr. William E. Miller has been using this special drug, diazoxide, in patients who had not responded to any of the other drugs now commonly in use.

The drug is given by injection and in carefully chosen cases it can reduce the blood pressure almost immediately without upsetting the functioning of the heart or the kidneys.

Diazoxide was used in a large group of carefully selected cases and the lowering effect on the blood pressure occurred within five minutes.

The new drug will now be tested and studied for a complete understanding of why it works, how safe it is and when it will be ready to be used by many of the physicians who came to the convention to learn about these and other new advances in medicine and surgery.

Escapes From Vietnamese

BAN ME THUOT, Vietnam (AP) — A U.S. Army sergeant missing for 15 days made his way back to allied lines and told of escaping from North Vietnamese in a 10-day flight through Cambodia and South Vietnam's central highlands, military sources reported today.

They said Sgt. Buddy Wright, of Wellston, Ohio, stumbled into a South Vietnamese army camp last Sunday pointing to his stomach and saying, "Chop chop, chop chop," which means food to the Vietnamese.

The sources said Wright gave this account of his capture and escape:

He became separated from his platoon Sept. 22 and North Vietnamese seized him south-west of the Duc Lap Special Forces camp near the Cambodian border, 125 miles north of Saigon.

He said the North Vietnamese troops marched him west for two days so he thought he was in Cambodia. They did not mistreat him, but took his wallet, identity tag and boots to prevent him from escaping.

North Vietnamese interrogators asked him the name of his unit, which is the 1st Battalion, 22nd Infantry, 4th Division. But Wright told them he did not know.

The interrogators asked him what kind of a noncommissioned officer didn't even know his unit.

He said he was a very stupid NCO.

The North Vietnamese had an AK47 assault rifle pointed at him during the interrogation. At night, a guard came by every 30 minutes and pointed a light at him.

During his fifth night of captivity, Wright escaped. He ran all night and all the next day. The North Vietnamese chased him.

"When I saw the North Vietnamese my first thought was, 'I am dead,'" Wright later told other American soldiers. "When they didn't kill me, my will to survive came pretty strong and I decided I will try hard to escape."

On the second day of his escape, he could see North Vietnamese troops still looking for him. He hid eight hours then struck out again when a heavy rain began to fall.

On the night of Oct. 5, he saw a fire and figured it was in a South Vietnamese camp. He was not sure, so he decided to wait until daylight.

At first light, he saw a soldier with an M16 rifle, the standard allied weapon. Wright walked toward him.

The soldier carried Wright to a hill the South Vietnamese troops were occupying. American advisers called a helicopter which took Wright to Duc Lap, then to the 2nd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division at Ban Me Thuot.

Capt. Daniel H. Trachtenberg of Philadelphia, Pa., a physician who examined Wright at Ban Me Thuot, said, "Sgt. Wright was in amazing good condition for what he had been through."

Wright lost several pounds and had lacerations of his feet, legs and arms which were slightly infected. His feet also were swollen.

During his flight to freedom Wright survived on nuts and wild berries. While a prisoner, the North Vietnamese fed him rice.

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't what you do that keeps you young in heart—it's what you dream of doing.

Life is a long flight from reality, and fantasy is as necessary to the mind's health as bread and meat are to bodily strength. Science has found through experimental testing that if people are kept from dreaming while asleep they tend to become neurotic.

The same thing is probably true of people when they are awake. Show me a man who doesn't spend a considerable portion of his time daydreaming and I'll show you a man who's heading for an ulcer or the but-terfly net.

Our daily worries are prison bars; our daydreams are magic escapes into brief but enchanting freedom, bright journeys of refreshment for the rut-stale soul.

Probably the best of all vehicles for daydreaming is a swivel chair, preferably one by a window. The office convict can lean back, stare out the window with blank eyes as if he were pondering a business problem of weighty concern and—zoom!—he's off and miles away mentally.

Some people have lived so long in Dullsville they have trouble thinking of something interesting to daydream about. But the choice is limitless. Why not dream of doing something you've heard about but never tried? For example, you might: Marry the boss's blue-eyed daughter.

Paddle a canoe across the Pacific. In 1870, Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee, died in Lexington, Va.

In 1934, Peter II became king of Yugoslavia.

Organize a party raid on your local YWCA or the headquarters of the Women's National Republican Club.

Stare everybody at the beach by showing up with portraits of all the candidates for the U.S. presidency tattooed on your chest in 12 living colors.

But what you daydream about isn't as important as the fact that you do it. Only then are you fully alive. For it is only in your daydreams that you can live the rich, carefree life you really deserve.

The soldier carried Wright to a hill the South Vietnamese troops were occupying. American advisers called a helicopter which took Wright to Duc Lap, then to the 2nd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division at Ban Me Thuot.

Capt. Daniel H. Trachtenberg of Philadelphia, Pa., a physician who examined Wright at Ban Me Thuot, said, "Sgt. Wright was in amazing good condition for what he had been through."

Wright lost several pounds and had lacerations of his feet, legs and arms which were slightly infected. His feet also were swollen.

During his flight to freedom Wright survived on nuts and wild berries. While a prisoner, the North Vietnamese fed him rice.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't what you do that keeps you young in heart—it's what you dream of doing.

Life is a long flight from reality, and fantasy is as necessary to the mind's health as bread and meat are to bodily strength. Science has found through experimental testing that if people are kept from dreaming while asleep they tend to become neurotic.

The same thing is probably true of people when they are awake. Show me a man who doesn't spend a considerable portion of his time daydreaming and I'll show you a man who's heading for an ulcer or the but-terfly net.

Our daily worries are prison bars; our daydreams are magic escapes into brief but enchanting freedom, bright journeys of refreshment for the rut-stale soul.

Probably the best of all vehicles for daydreaming is a swivel chair, preferably one by a window. The office convict can lean back, stare out the window with blank eyes as if he were pondering a business problem of weighty concern and—zoom!—he's off and miles away mentally.

Some people have lived so long in Dullesville they have trouble thinking of something interesting to daydream about. But the choice is limitless. Why not dream of doing something you've heard about but never tried? For example, you might:

Marry the boss's blue-eyed daughter.

Paddle a canoe across the Pacific.

Steal a gigantic diamond from the eye of a heathen stone idol.

Become a partner of James Bond, and share his dangers and his damns.

Become the fifth face on the Mt. Rushmore Memorial.

Perform an emergency appendectomy by flashlight on a stricken crewmember aboard a submarine submerged under the North Pole.

Grow a tomato in your garden bigger than your neighbor's pumpkin.

Look a gift horse in the mouth.

Win the Masters Golf Tournament—using only a putter.

Find Judge Crater, alive and well in Argentina.

Discover a sure cure for middle age that won't make people feel any older.

Climb Mt. Everest and plant your family coat of arms on a stick at the top.

Lead a successful filibuster in the U.S. Senate against another income tax increase.

Organize a party raid on your local WCA or the headquarters of the Women's National Republican Club.

Stare everybody at the beach by showing up with portraits of all the candidates for the U.S. presidency tattooed on your chest in 12 living colors.

But what you daydream about isn't as important as the fact that you do it. Only then are you fully alive. For it is only in your daydreams that you can live the rich, carefree life you really deserve.

Smog May Hurt Heart Victims

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A survey in Los Angeles County shows smog may lessen a heart attack victim's chances for survival, the California Department of Health said.

Dr. John R. Goldsmith director of the agency's environmental hazards evaluation unit, said the study found that persons living in less smoggy areas of the county survive heart attacks more readily than others.

In the high-smog areas, Goldsmith said, the fatality rate per 100 hospital admissions for heart attacks averaged 27.3 for the year—1958—compared with 19.1 in low pollution areas.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

How You Ask Gets What You Want

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure there are other working mothers who share my problem. How do you get a husband to help you a little around the house?

My husband comes home from work, reads the paper, eats dinner, turns on the TV and sits all evening.

Meanwhile, I have all the household duties, care of the baby, lesson plans, and papers to grade. (I'm a school teacher.)

My husband took the garbage out twice in the three years we've been married, but he complained so much about it, I've quit asking.

Is there any way to change him? Or must I remain a slave?

TIRE D IN CHEYENNE

DEAR TIRE D: There could be something wrong with the way you've been asking him. Or perhaps you communicate a lack of appreciation when he does something to help. Sit down and explain that you're part of the "earning" team, and you need his help on the home front. But don't whine or nag.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23 and my husband (I'll call him John) is 26. We have one child, a year old, and have been married five years.

Ever since our marriage John has worked for my father who is a successful cattle rancher.

Every morning Daddy calls John and tells him what to do. John never makes any of the decisions. Daddy does. John works 15 hours a day. He doesn't get any pay, but we get our keep and we know when Daddy dies, everything will be John's and mine. My folks have really been wonderful to us.

The problem: John's father has a used car lot in California and he's invited us to move there, and if we like it, John can buy into the business. John wants to move. So do I, but if we do, my folks will be heartbroken as we'd be taking their only grandchild away. What should we do?

TORN DEAR TORN: John should be a man and do what he wants to do, and as his wife, you should encourage him to do the manly thing. I'm sorry for your parents, but I'm sorrier for you and John if you stay when you really want to go.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancée and I are very much in love, but we are of different religious faiths. Not wanting to start off on the wrong foot, we consulted a marriage counselor for premarital counseling to discuss the fair way to settle this question of which religion we should follow.

He suggested that we both leave the churches in which we were brought up, and together join a third church. In your opinion, will this work?

STILL UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Only if you and your fiancée have no deep religious convictions.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be maid of honor at a wedding in a couple of weeks. My problem is that the bride is insisting that I go to her hairdresser and let him do my hair the way she wants it for the wedding. She has one style picked out for ALL the girls in the wedding party, and it's very unbecoming to me.

Abby, I have my own hairstyle all picked out and I don't want to go to her hairdresser to have it done to suit her taste.

Has the bride the right to dictate hair-styles for the entire wedding party? How should I handle this?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: If I were you, I would choose my own hair style. If the bride remains insistent, she should pick a more compliant maid of honor.

Approve Drive For Tough Law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state gave its sanction Friday to efforts by a group of Ohio women to seek enactment of tougher drunk driving laws.

The newly formed women's group is named WITS, short for Women in Traffic Safety, an affiliate of the Ohio Committee for Highway Safety.

Approval of the project for state wide action came at a session with Highway Safety Director Warren C. Nelson and C. Albert Weese, highway department administrative assistant for planning and programming.

Weese praised the states new comprehensive traffic safety code, but told the group that the 1969 Legislature should tighten standards for driver intoxication tests.

My husband comes home from work, reads the paper, eats dinner, turns on the TV and sits all evening.

Meanwhile, I have all the household duties, care of the baby, lesson plans, and papers to grade. (I'm a school teacher.)

My husband took the garbage out twice in the three years we've been married, but he complained so much about it, I've quit asking.

Is there any way to change him? Or must I remain a slave?

TIRE D IN CHEYENNE
DEAR TIRE D: There could be something wrong with the way you've been asking him. Or perhaps you communicate a lack of appreciation when he does something to help. Sit down and explain that you're part of the "earning" team, and you need his help on the home front. But don't whine or nag.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23 and my husband (I'll call him John) is 26. We have one child, a year old, and have been married five years.

Ever since our marriage John has worked for my father who is a successful cattle rancher.

Every morning Daddy calls John and tells him what to do. John never makes any of the decisions. Daddy does. John works 15 hours a day. He doesn't get any pay, but we get our keep and we know when Daddy dies, everything will be John's and mine. My folks have really been wonderful to us.

The problem: John's father has a used car lot in California and he's invited us to move there, and if we like it, John can buy into the business. John wants to move. So do I, but if we do, my folks will be heartbroken as we'd be taking their only grandchild away. What should we do?

TORN
DEAR TORN: John should be a man and do what he wants to do, and as his wife, you should encourage him to do the manly thing. I'm sorry for your parents, but I'm sorrier for you and John if you stay when you really want to go.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I are very much in love, but we are of different religious faiths. Not wanting to start off on the wrong foot, we consulted a marriage counselor for premarital counseling to discuss the fair way to settle this question of which religion we should follow.

He suggested that we both leave the churches in which we were brought up, and together join a third church. In your opinion, will this work?

STILL UNDECIDED
DEAR UNDECIDED: Only if you and your fiancé have no deep religious convictions.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be maid of honor at a wedding in a couple of weeks. My problem is that the bride is insisting that I go to her hairdresser and let him do my hair the way she wants it for the wedding. She has one style picked out for ALL the girls in the wedding party, and it's very unbecoming to me.

Abby, I have my own hairstyle all picked out and I don't want to go to her hairdresser to have it done to suit her taste.

Has the bride the right to dictate hair-styles for the entire wedding party? How should I handle this?

DESPERATE
DEAR DESPERATE: If I were you, I would choose my own hair style. If the bride remains insistent, she should pick a more compliant maid of honor.

Olympic Games Officially Opened Today In Mexico

Associated Press Sports Editor

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The tense, troubled, turmoil-beset Games of the 19th Olympiad officially opened today in the resplendent 80,000 capacity Olympic Stadium close by the University of Mexico, focus of recent student strife.

Army soldiers and scores of police were on guard in force. Mexico City has been calm since last week's student flare-up that brought the dead in recent riots to more than 50.

As usual the opening ceremonies followed the rigid Olympic pattern but the program put emphasis wherever there was latitude on native Mexican folklore and music.

The opening program called for all the usual Olympic pomp and circumstances:

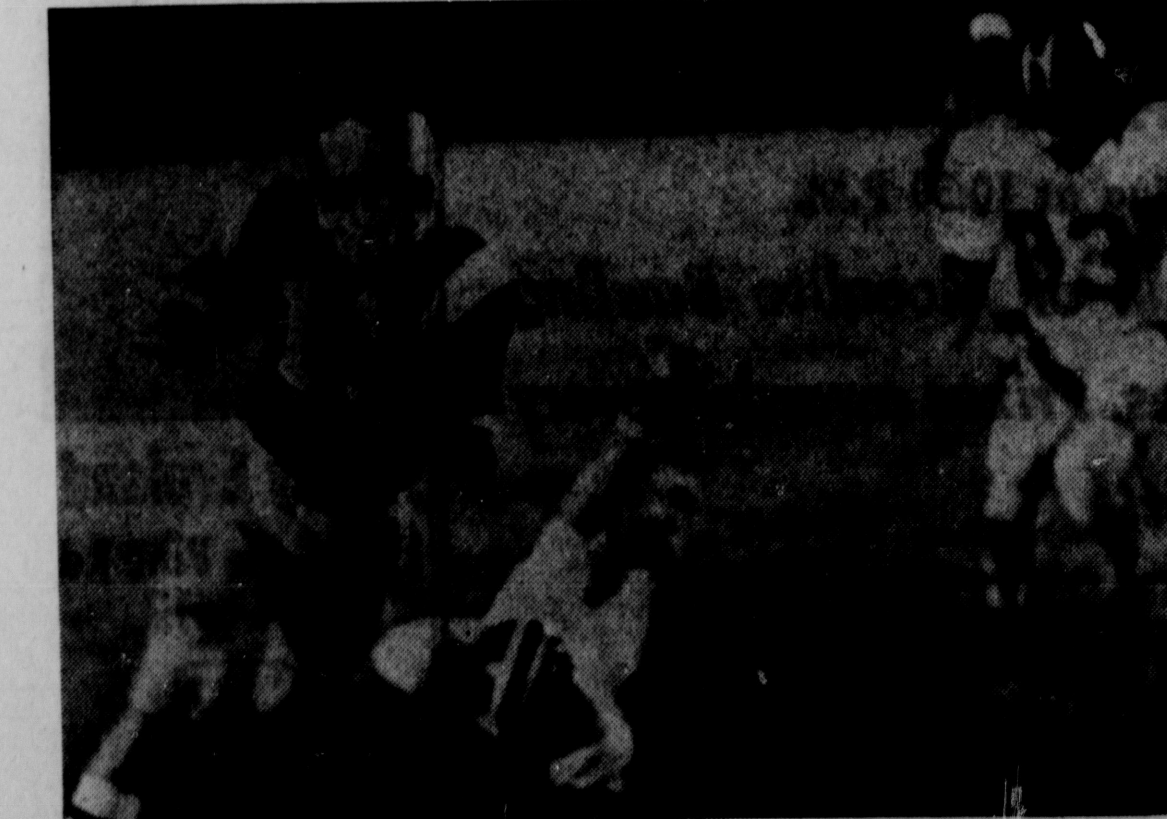

The march in of 124 teams behind their national flags, largest ever to compete in any Games; the release of 6,200 doves; the lighting of the torch for the first time ever by a girl, Enriqueta Basilio Sotelo.

The formal, brief proclamation of the President of Mexico, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz; and the turning over of the Olympic flag by the Mayor of Tokyo, Ayukichi Minobe, to the Mexico City Mayor, Alfonso Corona del Rosal.

The Olympic code permits no deviation from the prescribed order of events.

But the deviations that preceded these Games have been wide and numerous. They started with the controversy over selecting a city with a mile and one half altitude.

They came to a boil when more than 30 nations threatened to boycott the Games because the South African team, segregated within South Africa, had integrated outside, was admitted. It was later rejected and peace was restored, except in angry South Africa.

SOPHOMORE WHIZ — Miami Trace's Jeff Blake (11), only a sophomore, paced the Panthers to a 21-14 win over Circleville. Blake connected on seven of 11 passes and picked up valuable yardage on rollouts a couple of times.

Panthers Topple CHS Tigers, 21-14

Miami Trace scored twice on long bombs and once late in the game to defeat Circleville, 21-14, Friday on Tiger Field.

It was the first loss for the Tigers on their three-year-old field.

The running of Trace's Bev Lee and the passing of sophomore quarterback Jeff Blake spelled the defeat for Circleville.

The visitors gained a total of 384 yards while Circleville picked up only 175. Of the Trace total, 158 came through the air as Blake connected on seven of 11 pass attempts, including a 64-yard scoring aerial.

CIRCLEVILLE quarterback got the ball in the air ten times in the game, but completed only two for 17 yards.

Bev Lee rushed for 153 yards and scored two touchdowns and a two-point conversion for the visitors from Fayette County.

Rick Sims was Circleville's workhorse, scoring two touchdowns and rushing for 104 yards. He carried the ball 22 times for the Tigers, who had a total of 61 plays from scrimmage.

Circleville won the toss of the coin and elected to receive last night at the beginning of the game.

On their first series with the ball, the Tigers moved from the 26-yard line to just past midfield before their offense stalled.

Dick Walters punted to the 16-yard line. On the very first play from scrimmage, Lee took a pitchout from Blake and raced 84 yards to score.

LEE also rushed in for the two-point conversion.

Sims took the kickoff at the 15, handed the ball off to Henderson, who returned the ball to midfield before he was tackled.

Circleville's very first play was a pass that was intercepted by Greg Holder at the 40-yard line. He was tackled at the 44-yard line.

Trace ran four plays, advancing the ball to the 40-yard line. There Blake lofted a pass that was picked off by Mike Henderson at the 25-yard line.

Henderson ran the ball to the Miami Trace two-yard line where he was tackled from behind. Sims scored from the two, with 5:37 showing on the clock. Dan Smith kicked the extra point and the Red and Black traded by one.

The remainder of the half was scoreless. Trace's deepest penetration was to Circleville's 37 yard line.

The Tigers could not get past midfield.

CIRCLEVILLE gained 82 yards in the first half, all on the ground. Trace gained a total of 197 yards, 56 through the air and 141 on the ground.

In the second half, Trace could not move with the opening kickoff and had to punt from their own 17-yard line. A 15-yard penalty against Trace and a nine yard loss by Blake hurt the Panthers.

Circleville started moving from midfield, got set back to the 42-yard line on a penalty and then picked up a big first down on a pass from Bowers to Walters.

Four plays later, Mike Henderson burst through the line for two yards and a first down at the 29-yard line.

Bowers called on Sims to carry the ball, and the senior halfback shot through the line, squirmed out of the grip of a wouldbe tackler at the 25 and raced into the end zone, giving Circleville a 13-8 lead. Smith kicked the extra point and with 3:54 to go in the third quarter, the Tigers were ahead, 14-8.

It was very quiet in the Circleville dressing room, while cries of victory echoed through the walls from the Miami Trace locker room.

Mike Henderson, the Tiger mini-back, had a big night defensively, intercepting two passes, and running one of them back 73 yards to set up a TD.

Senior tackle Don Cordle missed last night's game. Cordle bumped his head in gym class this week and the doctor did not feel he was ready to play.

One Miami Trace griddler was taken to the hospital by the ambulance during the game.

Tom Fletcher and Steve Dade, a pair of Circleville grads, are on the starting team at Northeastern Oklahoma A & M College. Fletcher, linebacker last year, the team's leading tackler, injured his knee this year. He played tackle and guard in his first start, seeing all his action on defense.

Craig Lambert at Cornell University, saw his first action in a freshman game this week.

Another Circleville grad, Ron Bryant, is playing middle guard for the University of Cincinnati and Steve Carroll is playing cornerback for Wittenberg's frosh.

Circleville fans left the game with the impression that Miami Trace quarterback Jeff Blake will be a fine player for the next couple of years. He is just a sophomore.

It is the second time a sophomore quarterback has directed the Trace Panthers to a victory over Circleville. Eddie Summers, now a freshman playing for Miami University, did it as a sophomore four years ago.

But Trace bounced right back. On the second down, Blake faded back to pass, had all the time in the world to spot his receiver, and hit Greg Holder for a 64-yard touchdown pass. Blake kicked the extra point and Trace was on top again. The Panthers scored just 50 seconds after the Tigers.

THE final touchdown of the game came with just 27 seconds remaining.

Circleville got the ball at their own 10-yard line with 1:21 to go. Bowers tried four successive passes. Only one found its mark and it was good for four yards.

The Tigers gave up the ball on downs at their own 15 yard line with 54 seconds to go.

On the first play after taking over, Lee covered 12 yards for the visitors. He crossed the goal line for the final touchdown from three yards out. The try for the extra point was no good.

In the second half, Circleville gained 93 yards, compared to 151 for Trace. The Tigers completed both of their passes in the second half, gaining 17 yards through the air.

Trace had 102 yards passing in the second half and 49 on the ground.

Westfall was overcome by a fourth quarter scoring spree at West Jefferson Friday, losing to the Roughriders, 38-16.

The Mustangs led, 10-0, at the end of the first quarter, 16-8, at halftime and the game was deadlocked, 16-16, at the end of three periods.

John Furniss scored both of Westfall's touchdowns, crossing the goal line on a seven yard sweep around end in the first quarter and rolling 30 yards after a pass play failed to develop in the second.

The first score for the Mustangs was a safety. The West Jefferson quarterback, Pelfrey, dropped back to pass deep in his own territory, was hit near the goal line by Marlin Howard and dropped behind the goal line by Tim Dewey.

WESTFALL'S quarterback, Greg Bigam, tallied a two point conversion after Furniss' first touchdown.

Furniss carried the ball 18 times in the game, gaining 153 yards.

The Mustangs rushed for 215

West Jeff Tames Mustangs, 38-16

yards in the first half and passed for 39 more. In the second half, they were held to 42 yards on the ground and 15 through the air.

Tony Lightle sustained a cut on his eyelid in the second quarter and didn't play the rest of the game. With Lightle out of action, the Mustangs became vulnerable to the outside running game of the Roughriders.

When Westfall adjusted its defense to stop the outside game, the Roughriders began moving up the middle.

Twice in the first half Westfall penetrated as deep as the West Jefferson 10 yard line, only to have potential scoring drives stalled by the Roughriders defense.

IN the second half, two drives were halted when the Mustangs fumbled the ball and one was stalled by a penalty.

Obie Folden ran wild for West Jefferson, scoring four touchdowns. He ran for three and was on the receiving end of a 37 yard TD aerial.

Black Hawks Trip St. Louis, 4-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Pappin may not make Chicago hockey fans forget Bobby Hull but for openers he made sure Jacques Plante will remember Jim Pappin.

The 29-year-old Pappin, acquired from Toronto during the off-season, made his debut with the Black Hawks Friday and pumped two goals past old goalie Plante as the Chicagoans skated to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Blues in one of three games on the National Hockey League's opening night schedule.

The other contests were inauspicious debuts for two new coaches. Boston downed Bill Gadsby's Detroit Red Wings 4-2 and Minnesota trounced Fred Glover's Oakland Seal 5-1.

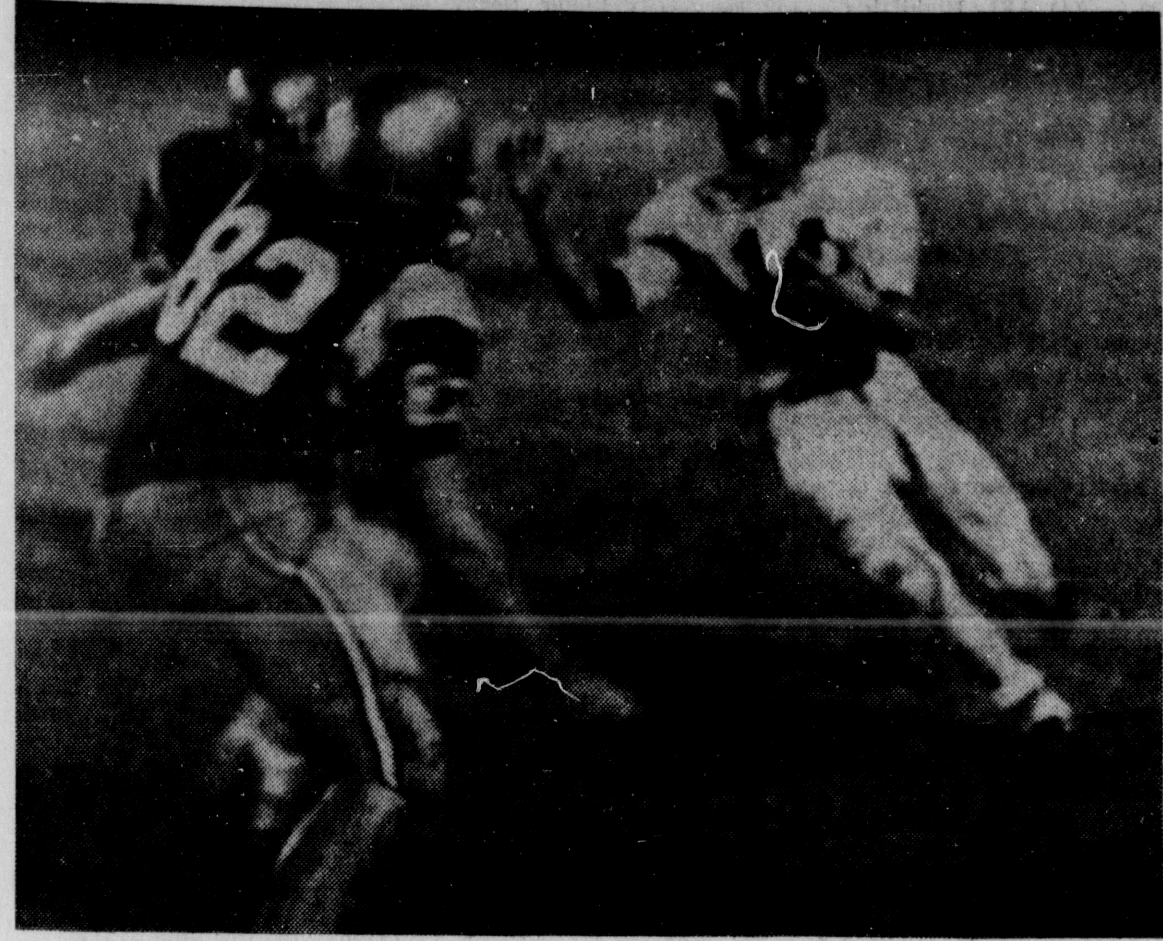

Joe Balsis Wins Billiards Crown

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Joe Balsis of Minersville, Pa., defeated Danny DiLiberto of Miami, Fla., twice Friday to win the U.S. Open Billiard Tournament Championship.

Balsis won the $5,000 first-place prize by defeating DiLiberto 150 to 83 in six innings and 150 to 92 in 15 innings. The second place prize was $3,000.

Balsis' victory brought his winnings this year up to $12,550.

Prize money in the weeklong tournament totaled $25,000.

West Jeff Tames Mustangs, 38-16

Westfall was overcome by a fourth quarter scoring spree at West Jefferson Friday, losing to the Roughriders, 38-16.

The Mustangs led, 10-0, at the end of the first quarter, 16-8, at halftime and the game was deadlocked, 16-16, at the end of three periods.

John Furniss scored both of Westfall's touchdowns, crossing the goal line on a seven yard sweep around end in the first quarter and rolling 30 yards after a pass play failed to develop in the second.

The first score for the Mustangs was a safety. The West Jefferson quarterback, Pelfrey, dropped back to pass deep in his own territory, was hit near the goal line by Marlin Howard and dropped behind the goal line by Tim Dewey.

WESTFALL'S quarterback, Greg Bigam, tallied a two point conversion after Furniss' first touchdown.

Furniss carried the ball 18 times in the game, gaining 153 yards.

The Mustangs rushed for 215 yards in the first half and passed for 39 more. In the second half, they were held to 42 yards on the ground and 15 through the air.

Tony Lightie sustained a cut on his eyelid in the second quarter and didn't play the rest of the game. With Lightie out of action, the Mustangs became vulnerable to the outside running game of the Roughriders.

When Westfall adjusted its defense to stop the outside game, the Roughriders began moving up the middle.

Twice in the first half Westfall penetrated as deep as the West Jefferson 10 yard line, only to have potential scoring drives stalled by the Roughrider defense.

IN the second half, two drives were halted when the Mustangs fumbled the ball and one was stalled by a penalty.

Obie Folden ran wild for West Jefferson, scoring four touchdowns. He ran for three and was on the receiving end of a 37 yard TD aerial.

Folden carried the ball 25 times, gaining 129 yards. His teammate, Bill Rhoades, gained 152 yards in 24 carries.

Westfall hosts East Clinton Local next Friday, and on the following week plays Paint Valley on the Mustang field.

Paint Valley is currently the Scioto Valley Conference leader, having lost only one game — a non-league contest.

Last night's loss was the first for the Mustangs this year. The only other blemish on their record was a 12-12 deadlock with Unioto.

North American Dairy Show Brings 900 To Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hans Leuthold of Tillamook, Ore., with a truck full of dairy cattle drove 2,500 miles to get here today for the opening of the North American Dairy cattle show.

Leuthold and about 900 other persons will show and exhibit more than 2,000 dairy cattle in the North American, the world's largest dairy cattle show.

The exhibitors are of all ages and from all sized farms. Several come from Canada and many, like Leuthold, drove several thousand miles to show their animals here.

Mark Hochstetler, 9, and his sister Mona, 11, of Danville, Ohio, will show an Ayrshire heifer, and Alta Mae Keightley, 10, of Harrodsburg, Ky., plans to show a Jersey animal as she has done since she was 4.

The show, which runs through Thursday, includes three national breed shows and three breed programs. About 250 international guests who attended the World Dairy Conference here, will also attend the North American.

The big show includes the national intercollegiate judging contest, and a Future Farmers of America invitational contest. The judging competition, all to be held Monday, will involve about 500 youngsters in three-member teams.

Thirty-one college teams will compete in the intercollegiate judging. Oregon State University is the defending champion.

The national 4-H judging includes 35 teams, one from Puerto Rico and about 100 FFA teams are expected for the competition.

More than $60,000 in premiums will be given to the winners in the various classes of dairy animals. The show is sponsored by the Ohio Expositions Commission in cooperation with the six dairy breeds.

TODAY In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the proportion of Negro servicemen killed in Vietnam has declined a bit, while the percentage serving in the war zone has risen.

A summary released Friday showed that at mid-year 13.7 per cent of the 25,616 Americans killed in Vietnam were Negro. The percentage stood at 14.1 at the end of the 1967.

The ratio of Negroes serving in Vietnam, Thailand and aboard Navy vessels in offshore waters was 10.5 per cent at mid-1968, compared to 9.8 per cent six months earlier.

The U.S. population was listed as 10.5 per cent Negro in the 1960 census.

The Defense Department initiated the racial breakdowns after some Negro leaders complained Negroes were bearing a disproportionate share of the fighting in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican and Democratic Senate leadership differs over whether Chief Justice Earl Warren's resignation carries over to next year, when a new president will be inaugurated.

Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen said he feels Warren's resignation letter means the new president can replace the chief justice, unless Warren withdraws the letter.

Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said, "I doubt it." He said Warren's letter was addressed to President Johnson, and only President Johnson can nominate a man to replace Warren.

Capital Footnotes

President Johnson says he intends to appoint Walter B. Lewis to be an assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Lewis, who is director of HUD's Office of Equal Opportunity in Housing, would be placed in charge of civil rights and fair housing activities.

The State Department says Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin are expected to meet sometime next week to discuss Israel's request to buy Phantom jet fighters.

Capital Quote

"I shall, after consulting with other world leaders and leaders of the Senate, seriously consider calling the Senate into special session." — President Johnson urging the Senate to ratify the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Larry O'Brien Sets Ohio Trip

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — National Democratic chairman Larry O'Brien will be in Columbus Wednesday for a 10 a. m. news conference, state party headquarters reported Friday.

O'Brien, who also serves as campaign manager for Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Edmund Muskie, arrives here Tuesday evening, when he will meet with party and labor leaders and representatives of citizens' groups supporting the Democratic presidential ticket.

Columbus is one stop on a coast-to-coast tour by O'Brien. Democratic leaders said he is assessing the progress of the campaign and organizing strategy for the final 20 days of the campaign.

"MY FATHER WORKS AT NASA" — Jon Eisele, the son of Apollo 7 astronaut Donn Eisele and who will be 4 Oct. 21, talks to newsmen at his home in Seabrook, Tex., and tells them his father "works at NASA."

Rendezvous

The trio guides their spacecraft today through a series of delicate maneuvers and back to a rendezvous with the second stage of the booster that flawlessly drilled them into orbit Friday.

The rendezvous simulates a lunar rescue of the first Americans to land on the moon. On a lunar flight, the lunar module will ascend from the moon's surface and use a radar system to rendezvous with the command and service module "mother ship."

But in case the lunar module becomes trapped in a lunar orbit, "Mama" will have to come to the rescue. The rescue calls for the command and service module pilot to guide his ship to the lunar module using optical and sextant tracking and dock, permitting the lunar astronauts to transfer to the command ship.

Today's plans were for Schirra to fly the Apollo 7 spacecraft as close as possible to the booster stage, called the S4B, but not actually dock. It was expected the rocket hull would be tumbling through the space void, forbidding the Apollo 7 crew to get much closer than 200 feet.

The crew also turns on the Apollo television system for the first time. Paul Hane, the voice of Apollo control, said the crew would start 10 minutes of television transmission from space during a pass over the United States.

The crew spent the night in lightweight coveralls after working almost eight hours in space wearing bulky and tiring pressure suits.

Dayton Soldier Slain By Guard

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 19-year-old prisoner from Ohio was killed by a guard's shotgun blast Friday when he tried to escape from a work detail at The Presidio.

He was identified by Army officials as Pvt. Richard J. Bunch.

He was awaiting trial on AWOL and other charges, said an Army spokesman.

The prisoner was working with three other prisoners behind the orderly room of the medical company at Letterman General Hospital when he tried to escape.

He ignored three shouted warnings to halt, said the spokesman, and the guard fired his shotgun from about 20 yards.

Marines Turn Back Viet Reds

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops attacked U.S. Marines in bivouac today near the embattled Thuong Duc Green Beret camp but were beaten back within 100 yards of the Leathernecks' defensive lines.

The enemy troops lost 31 dead in 3½ hours of fighting, the U.S. Command said, but killed eight Marines and wounded 20. The fight raged three miles northeast of the Green Beret—Special Forces—camp in jungled foothills 27 miles southwest of Da Nang.

The enemy force, of unknown size, apparently tried to take advantage of predawn darkness and overcast skies that hampered U.S. jet fighter-bombers in striking back. A U.S. spokesman said the enemy troops attacked with machine guns and small arms and did not use mortars to cover their assault as they often do.

"They were trying to achieve surprise," he said. "They tried to sneak up and get caught."

The Marines fought back with small arms and machine guns, and artillery units opened up on the charging North Vietnamese troops. Some American fighter-bombers were able to streak in to support the Marines but the poor visibility prevented saturation strikes of the enemy positions.

Air Force World War II twin-engine C47 cargo planes converted into gunships also attacked with rapid firing gatling guns spewing out 6,000 rounds of ammunition a minute.

Marines sweeping the battlefield at daybreak today were still drawing some enemy fire but it was light and sporadic. This indicated the bulk of the enemy force had pulled back to fight again when it chose to.

The Thuong Duc Special Forces camp sits astride enemy infiltration corridors leading into Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, and other population centers along the coastal lowlands.

Allied officers estimate that anywhere from 5,000 to 7,500 North Vietnamese troops, are operating between Thuong Duc and Da Nang. Elsewhere, allied ground and air forces battled enemy troops on two sides of Saigon and the fringes of the demilitarized zone Friday, killing 107 enemy soldiers in four sharp clashes, military spokesmen reported.

GOP Alerted For Vote Fraud

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Republicans must be on the alert to prevent ballot fraud in the Nov. 5 election, the party's national chairman, Ray C. Bliss, said Friday.

Bliss told a news conference in Cleveland there were "allegations" in 1960 that not all Richard M. Nixon's votes were "properly counted."

He said in large measure ballot security simply means manning all the precincts.

"In 1960, we had thousands of precincts unmanned across the nation," he added.

Band Fans Get Double Treat

The Circleville football fans had a double treat last night when the Junior and Senior high school bands took the field.

The 148 member junior band, under the direction of Clifford Kerns, gave the crowd a good show of what to expect in the years to come. The practiced group put on a precision-percussion movement with the Junior majorettes leading the field.

The senior band put on a new show this week with the unique but favorite subject — Girls. The majorettes were saluted in the band's first number, "Hello My Baby" as they entered the field in a precision motion.

The majorette corp did a routine for the band's next number, "Music To Watch Girls By."

The band's last precision movement was dedicated to the 1966 star, "Georgy Girl." The CHS director, William O'Neill plans to keep the band hopping by building on and changing the pregame and half time shows every week.

The rendezvous simulates a lunar rescue of the first Americans to land on the moon. On a lunar flight, the lunar module will ascend from the moon's surface and use a radar system to rendezvous with the command and service module "mother ship."

But in case the lunar module becomes trapped in a lunar orbit, "Mama" will have to come to the rescue. The rescue calls for the command and service module pilot to guide his ship to the lunar module using optical and sextant tracking and dock, permitting the lunar astronauts to transfer to the command ship.

Today's plans were for Schirra to fly the Apollo 7 spacecraft as close as possible to the booster stage, called the S4B, but not actually dock. It was expected the rocket hull would be tumbling through the space void, forbidding the Apollo 7 crew to get much closer than 200 feet.

The crew also turns on the Apollo television system for the first time. Paul Haney, the voice of Apollo control, said the crew would start 10 minutes of television transmission from space during a pass over the United States.

The crew spent the night in lightweight coveralls after working almost eight hours in space wearing bulky and tiring pressure suits.

Dayton Soldier Slain By Guard

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 19-year-old prisoner from Ohio was killed by a guard's shotgun blast Friday when he tried to escape from a work detail at The Presidio.

He was identified by Army officials as Pvt. Richard J. Bunch.

He was awaiting trial on AWOL and other charges, said an Army spokesman.

The prisoner was working with three other prisoners behind the orderly room of the medical company at Letterman General Hospital when he tried to escape.

He ignored three shouted warnings to halt, said the spokesman, and the guard fired his shotgun from about 20 yards.

Marines Turn Back Viet Reds

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops attacked U.S. Marines in bivouac today near the embattled Thuong Duc Green Beret camp but were beaten back within 100 yards of the Leathernecks' defensive lines.

The enemy troops lost 31 dead in 3½ hours of fighting, the U.S. Command said, but killed eight Marines and wounded 20. The fight raged three miles northeast of the Green Beret—Special Forces—camp in jungled foothills 27 miles southwest of Da Nang.

The enemy force, of unknown size, apparently tried to take advantage of predawn darkness and overcast skies that hampered U.S. jet fighter-bombers in striking back. A U.S. spokesman said the enemy troops attacked with machine guns and small arms and did not use mortars to cover their assault as they often do.

"They were trying to achieve surprise," he said. "They tried to sneak up and get caught." The Marines fought back with small arms and machine guns, and artillery units opened up on the charging North Vietnamese troops. Some American fighter-bombers were able to streak in to support the Marines but the poor visibility prevented saturation strikes of the enemy positions.

Air Force World War II twin-engine C47 cargo planes converted into gunships also attacked with rapid firing gatling guns spewing out 6,000 rounds of ammunition a minute.

Marines sweeping the battlefield at daybreak today were still drawing some enemy fire but it was light and sporadic. This indicated the bulk of the enemy force had pulled back to fight again when it chose to.

The Thuong Duc Special Forces camp sits astride enemy infiltration corridors leading into Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, and other population centers along the coastal lowlands.

Allied officers estimate that anywhere from 5,000 to 7,500 North Vietnamese troops, are operating between Thuong Duc and Da Nang. Elsewhere, allied ground and air forces battled enemy troops on two sides of Saigon and the fringes of the demilitarized zone Friday, killing 107 enemy soldiers in four sharp clashes, military spokesmen reported.

GOP Alerted For Vote Fraud

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Republicans must be on the alert to prevent ballot fraud in the Nov. 5 election, the party's national chairman, Ray C. Bliss, said Friday.

Bliss told a news conference in Cleveland there were "allegations" in 1960 that not all Richard M. Nixon's votes were "properly counted."

He said in large measure ballot security simply means manning all the precincts. "In 1960, we had thousands of precincts unmanned across the nation," he added.
